TALKING ABOUT IDENTITY & JUSTICE

1.

LISTEN.

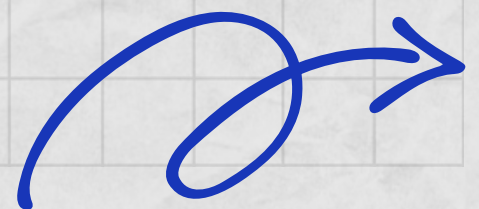

Learn from the lived experience and knowledge that young adults bring into the room. Invite young people to tell their stories.

2.

BE CURIOUS.

Listen to the questions that students bring to the table, and ask questions to better understand.

3.

KEEP AN EAR TO THE GROUND.

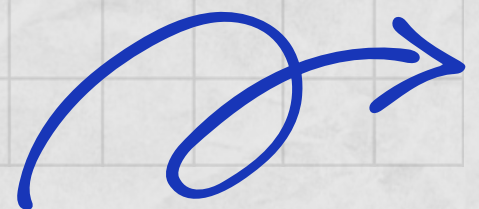

Tune into discussion opportunities that naturally arise during class, and bring current events and discussions from the wider world into the classroom.

CENTER "OWN VOICES."

Use texts, media, and stories authored by and centering the voices of those with lived experience and expertise.

5.

TAKE TIME TO REFLECT ON NEW IDEAS.

Pause and consider what you're all learning. Seek to understand before responding or acting.

6.

USE MEDIA STRATEGICALLY.

Curate your own feed to learn from young people. Use young people's technology & modes of communication: consider short videos, social media, and memes.

8.

ANCHOR YOUR WORK IN JOY.

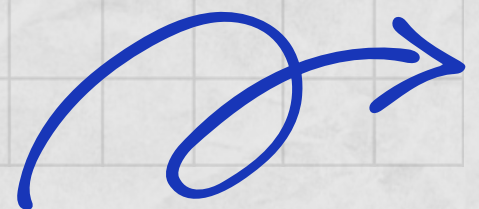

“Remember that liberation is ultimately about honoring humanity, honoring young people , and loving young people. This is joyful.” - Jamilah Pitts

9.

PLAY THE LONG GAME.

Be resilient. Rest as needed. Stay connected. Keep going.
